PREVENTING DISASTER LEARNING FROM LONGFORD

Professor Andrew Hopkins' analysis of the Esso Plant Explosion at Longford forms the basis of this workshop.

The eleven key contributory elements in the safety chain are examined, and flagged in a generic way so that participants can apply the same approach to their own organizations.

This highly interactive training program is suitable for management at all levels. It's intended to allow participants to develop a detailed action plan of how to apply the "Lessons Learned" to their own organization. The program is intended to alert and instruct management regarding any weaknesses in their organisation's Occupational Health & Safety System.

Contents: The DVD is in both "Play" and "Chaptered" format. Fully customisable Facilitator's Guides as well as Participant's Handouts are included on a CD. The Guides Include a running sheet, information on how to run specific group activities and Certificates of Attendance.

CREATING A MINDFUL ORGANIZATION

Organizational culture is one of the key factors why companies fail to recognise the warning signs prior to workplace accidents. In this workshop Professor Hopkins sets out to help management address the shortfalls of traditional organizational mindsets.

It proposes key necessary steps towards being "mindful" by covering the areas of: High reliability organizations, collective mindfulness, group think, reporting systems, and due diligence.

This program is designed to give management the tools to significantly improve management of Occupational Health & Safety Risk. It is suitable for Strategic Decision Makers, Safety Managers, Management from middle to senior level, Plant Managers and Risk Managers.

The workshops provide a self-driven resource that can be used across an organization, ensuring standardized comprehensive reviews and detailed action plan development and reporting.

THE CLIMBER'S ATTITUDE: DYNAMIC RISK ASSESSMENT

While potentially a highly dangerous sport, rock climbers have relatively few accidents. This is mainly because they have developed a system of Dynamic Risk Assessments.

Dynamic Risk Assessment is also being used in industry to enable workers to identify and assess potential hazards on an almost minute by minute basis rather than relying solely on formal risk assessments. This unique approach covers Teamwork, Risk Assessment, and Identifying Hazards not covered by formal risk assessments.

Contents: Part One - Dynamic Risk Assessment - 7 mins
Part Two - Attitude & Behaviour - 8 mins Bonus Clips / Ice Breaker - 4 mins Martin Woodall's Address - 2 mins
